Settlement Hopes Rise

Tunisian President, DeGaulle Meet on Algerian Rebellion

PARIS (AP)—Tunisian President Habib Bourguiba and French President Charles de Gaulle today began critical talks aimed at setting the scene for peaceful settlement of the Algerian rebellion.

The two went into a closed door conference immediately after Bourguiba arrived at De Gaulle's secluded chateau in Rambouillet outside Paris.

Bourguiba drove from Orly Airport in 45 minutes flanked by a motorcycle escort as police helicopters whirled overhead.

Tough security precautions barred everyone but government officials and accredited newsmen from the area around the chateau.

Flew in From Zurich

The Tunisian president who calls the rebels his brothers and the French his friends, flew in from Zurich for the climactic talks.

Thousands of police and special gendarmes guarded Orly Field and the 30-mile route to Rambouillet. The road was closed to all traffic an hour before Bourguiba's scheduled passage.

De Gaulle evidently was taking no chances that extremists opposed to any peace negotiations might mar the Bourguiba visit.

Full military honors were rendered Bourguiba as he stepped from his plane on his first visit to France since he negotiated independence in 1955. The greeting party was headed by French Premier Michel Debre.

Bourguiba and De Gaulle are scheduled for day-long private meetings. Later Debre, Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville, Tunisian Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs Dr. Sadok Mokkadem and others will be called in for a formal round-table discussion.

Too Delicate for Publicity

Whether any communiqué will be issued is questionable. The negotiations are viewed as too delicate for either man to wish much publicity.

Before bringing the French and the rebels face-to-face at a peace table, some highly complicated questions must be cleared up.

Although the rebels have accepted in principle De Gaulle's proposal of self-determination for Algeria they demand negotiations on how this will be applied. De Gaulle has previously refused to talk until the rebels lay down their arms, although it is now generally recognized that he is ready to weaken on this score.

It will be Bourguiba's task to

Nationwide Hunt on For Tot's Slayer

NEW YORK (AP)—The search for pretty little Edith (Googie) Kiecorius is over.

Another has taken its place—a nationwide manhunt for the murderer of the 4-year-old girl.

Edith's half-clad, bruised body was found Sunday in a shabby rooming house only hours after her widowed mother had prayerfully insisted, "No one can hurt such a beautiful child."

A medical examiner said Edith apparently had been beaten to death but an autopsy was ordered to determine the exact cause. The girl was sexually assaulted. The examiner approximated the time of death as last Wednesday—the day the child disappeared from in front of her uncle's home just two blocks away.

Accompanying the nationwide alarm was a description of the toothless, middle-aged man who rented the room Feb. 17 and was last seen an hour before the child vanished. Police said the man registered at the drab West Side rooming house under the name Fred Thompson. He was described as about 50 to 55 years old, 5 feet, 3 inches tall and weighing 140 to 150 pounds.

Edith, her mother, Mrs. Alvinos Kiecorius; her grandmother, Frances Duclat, and her brother, Albin, 10, were visiting her uncle, Manuel Duclat, at his Eighth Ave. home when she disappeared.

Four Hurt In Highway Accidents

Four persons are in Salem City Hospital today with injuries suffered in two one-car mishaps investigated by highway patrolmen Sunday and this morning.

John L. Morgan, 19, of Beaver Falls, Pa., is in fair condition with injuries sustained in a crash on Rt. 14, four miles east of Rt. 7, at 1:20 a.m. today. Morgan, a passenger in the eastbound car driven by Joseph L. Manzelowski, 20, also of Beaver Falls, received contusions and abrasions of the nose, the left side of the body and both knees.

Patrolmen said the accident occurred when Manzelowski drove his car around a curve and lost control, causing the auto to go off the right side of the road, back onto the highway, then roll over an embankment on the right side of the road.

Manzelowski was cited by patrolmen for unsafe operation. The car was demolished, patrolmen said.

The driver and two passengers involved in the second mishap are in fairly good condition with injuries received when their car went off Rt. 30, three miles west of Rt. 172, at 3:50 p.m. Sunday.

Injured were the driver, Roland W. Jones, 68, of Newark, lacerations of the lower left cheek and right side of the head and multiple abrasions of the right knee, right hand and face; and two passengers, Grace Jones, 71, the driver's wife, possible hip injury and multiple contusions of the right hip; and a daughter-in-law, Marie Jones, 42, of Bethesda, Md., multiple contusions of both legs and a whiplash injury of the neck.

Patrolmen said the mishap occurred when Jones passed an unknown vehicle while approaching a hill crest and curve, causing the car to go out of control off the right berm into a guard rail, then back across the road into a ditch and overturn.

The Jones' auto was demolished, patrolmen said. Jones was cited for passing on a hill.

Storm Darkens 75,000 Homes In Northeast Ohio

CLEVELAND (AP)—Storm-weary residents of northeast Ohio today were shaking off the effects of a weekend snowstorm which darkened some 75,000 homes and caused damage and expenses up to $500,000.

The freak storm swept along a 150-mile line from the Pennsylvania border to Erie County, with the greatest concentration of damage in the Cleveland area. Wet snow and sleet, carried along on 55-mile-an-hour winds, tore down thousands of power lines.

The Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co., which sent 600 men out to repair the damage, said the storm was the worst in its 80-year history.

In Cleveland alone, 60,000 homes were without power for varying periods. Another 10,000 homes were affected in Lake, Ashtabula and Geauga counties.

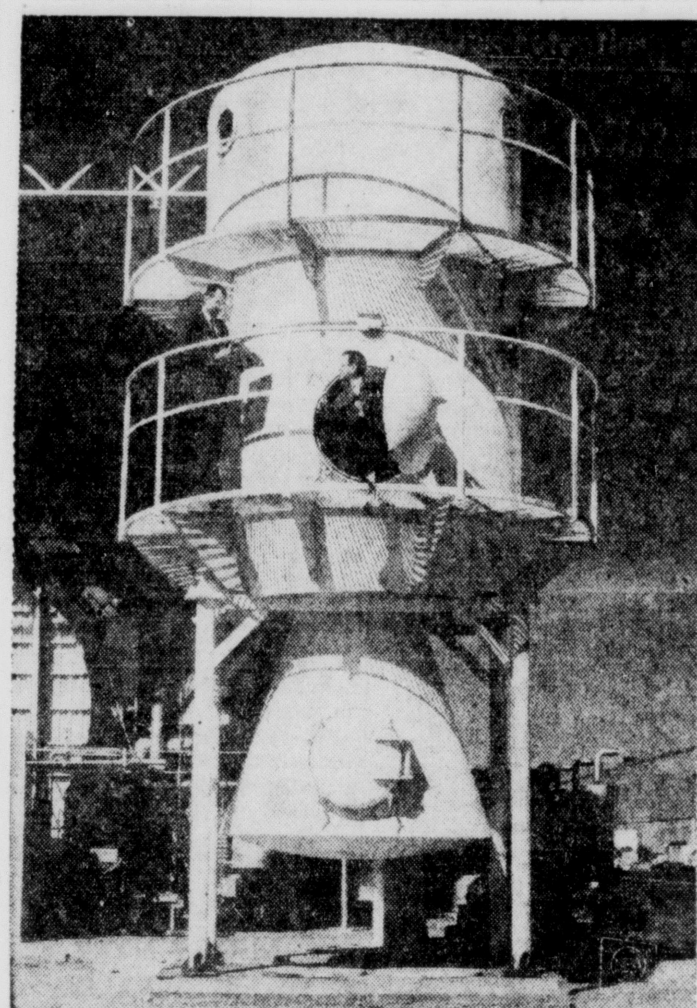

By this morning, power was restored to virtually all homes. The CEI had to call for help from crews in Canton, Toledo and Erie, Pa. The company said that during the night, its switchboard averaged three incoming calls a second from residents seeking repairs and advice.

Ike Denies He Criticized JFK Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower Sunday night disavowed as inaccurate and regrettable a fellow Republican's statement that Eisenhower is critical of the direction President Kennedy's administration is taking.

Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., talked with Eisenhower for an hour recently at his Palm Springs, Calif., vacation spot. In a news letter he sends to constituents, Mundt Sunday gave his impression of Eisenhower's views.

"He is critical of the tendencies thus far evidenced by the JFK administration—too much left of center; too partisan; too slanted toward programs supported by union brossism," Mundt wrote.

Minding no words, Eisenhower issued this disavowal through a secretary:

"Sen. Mundt's statement as reported to me Sunday evening does not accurately describe either my views on public affairs or my personal plans, and I very much regret its issuance.

"The senator evidently intended to repeat in detail our private and purely social conversation, but his recollection of the many subjects mentioned and his interpretations differ markedly from my own.

"Especially I regret the assessment attributed to me of the performance of my successor and his administration, on which subject I have formed no judgment.

Ohio Jobless Bill Heads for Senate Vote

GOP Will Attempt To Add Emergency Clause to Measure

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Two Senate hearings only 13 hours apart—one tonight, the other Tuesday morning—will send the controversial jobless benefits extension bill to the Senate floor for a showdown.

Republican leaders plan to reinstate an emergency clause in the House-approved bill, the same cause which failed to stand up last week in the House on a strict party vote—all the Republicans for it and all the Democrats against.

Senate Majority Leader C. Stanley McNamara, R-Athens, expects the showdown vote Thursday.

The battle over the benefits extension bill continues to hold the center of the legislative stage as the lawmakers return to Columbus tonight for their ninth week.

With the arrival on the scene late last week of the governor's 1,500-page executive budget detailing Gov. Michael V. DiSalle's plans for state spending of more than $2 billion in the next two years, the House Finance Committee is in position to get to work in earnest. Republican leaders have estimated the job of studying the appropriations bill item by item will require about three months.

Republicans expressed confidence last week that Democrats, by the time they return to the legislative halls tonight, will have taken with their constituents back home and will be persuaded that they took the wrong tack when they voted solidly to knock the emergency clause out of the unemployment benefits extension bill.

Whether GOP confidence is misplaced remains, of course, to be seen.

Organized labor objects violently to the Republican-sponsored bill, not because of the benefits extension, which the Ohio AFL-CIO wants badly in view of mounting unemployment, but because of other permanent changes the Republican measure would make in the unemployment compensation law.

Some of these changes are termed restrictive and "backward steps" by labor officials. Traditionally, of course, Republicans have tended to favor a more conservative jobless benefits law than the Democrats—and most labor leaders exert their strongest influence in the Democratic party.

The AFL-CIO has announced a 13-week series of five-minute programs which started this morning over 31 radio stations. "To keep the public informed of happenings in the state legislature."

"The first thing we'll do," said Elmer F. Cope, AFL-CIO secretary-treasurer, "is set the record straight as to who is responsible

Moroccan Prince Takes Throne of Dead Father

RABAT, Morocco (AP)—Morocco's new king posted heavy security forces around strategic points today to keep a firm hand on the potentially explosive political situation created by the unexpected death of his father, King Mohammed V.

Tech School Eyes Foreign Students

The Salem School of Technology, now in its first year of operation, may get students next year from Europe.

Holland W. Cameron, director of the school, has been advised by Assistant Secretary of State Macomber that the State Department will cooperate in publicizing the local school to interested students in Western Germany, Sweden and other countries that the Salem school expresses an interest in.

Congressman Wayne L. Hays also has promised his cooperation. The State Department has requested additional information on the Technical School to furnish to its foreign service posts.

Fifty-six students are currently enrolled in the college-level program which began last September as the result of the joint cooperation of the Salem Board of Education, local and district industries and the State Department of Vocational Education.

A three-year program, the school term includes 48 weeks annually, with students either studying or working at "job stations" in industry for 12-week periods. At the end of one period, the classroom students trade places with those who have been getting practical experience in industry.

Courses covered mechanical engineering and electrical engineering. Other subjects may be added later, Mr. Cameron says.

Warning Issued After Attacks On Personnel

Leopoldville Jittery As Lumumbist Unit Advances on Capital

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—The U.N. Congo command threatened force against Congolese troops in Leopoldville today following a wave of attacks against U.N. personnel including what was termed a bestial attack against a woman.

Violence against off-duty personnel broke out Sunday night and early today in the jittery atmosphere arising from the advance of Lumumbist troops toward the capital.

A statement issued by the U.N. Command said these attacks cannot be tolerated and will be resisted "with full force."

Member of U. N. Staff

The attacked woman was a member of the U.N. civilian staff, the spokesman said. He said she was being driven home by an unarmed U.N. Sudanese officer Sunday night when the car was stopped by soldiers on a highway some distance outside Leopoldville.

Two Congolese armed with sub-machine guns climbed into the car and ordered the officer to drive to nearby Camp Reisdorf army post.

On the way the soldiers ordered the officer to drive in a bush area where other soldiers were waiting.

The woman was forced out of the car. The soldiers assaulted her while the officer was made to look on with a submachine gun jabbed into his stomach.

"It was a bestial assault," a U.N. spokesman said.

When the couple was released they took shelter in the home of a Belgian engineer.

In another reported incident four unarmed U.N. Canadian troops in a jeep were halted by Congolese troops near a scenic

Legislators Hewed to Party Lines

Politics Ruled Day When Ohio Jobless Aid Bill Was Voted On

By DUANE E. CROFT
Salem News Staff Correspondent
COLUMBUS, Ohio — Twice in a row the speaker rang the voting bell and the two big tally boards in the Ohio House of Representatives lit up like Christmas trees.

The atmosphere in the 139-member chamber was anything but festive, however, because the legislators were recording their decisions on the first big issue of the 1961 session: The bill to give a 13-week extension of jobless pay benefits to unemployed workers who have exhausted their normal 26 weeks of aid.

Party-Line Verdict

Beside every Democratic name was a red light, meaning "no." Beside every Republican name was a green light, meaning "yes." In a strict party-line decision, the Republican majority had passed its bill, but the Democrats had refused to throw in enough extra votes to make it an emergency measure taking effect upon the governor's signature.

The top leader of each party in the House—Speaker Roger Cloud for the Republicans and Minority Leader James A. Lantz for the Democrats—was elated. It's a rare occasion when either of them can command the obedience of every one of his members, and neither one expected to on this volatile issue.

The reaction of the individual members, however, was something else. Many a sad-faced legislator shook his head and muttered to himself, "How am I going to explain this to the folks back home?" Knowing full well how hard it is to explain back home, the sad-faced ones also may have asked themselves why they ever got tangled up in this precarious business called politics.

Politics Rules

For there can be no doubt that politics ruled the day. No vote is cast on party lines unless there is a lot of politicking on both sides of the legislative aisle.

Take, for instance, the nature of the bill the GOP laid before the House. In addition to extending benefits beyond 26 weeks, it makes a number of changes in the law passed two years ago, when the Democrats were in control.

The changes were aimed at correcting things considered by a lot of people to be abusive to the employers who contribute to the compensation fund.

As for the extension itself, it would be accomplished by means of a "trigger" based on a state wide average of unemployment. That is unpalatable to organized labor, a number of Democrats and Gov. Michael V. DiSalle, who think it is unfair to specific areas with higher unemployment than the rest of the state.

GOP Puts Dems on Spot

Thus the Republicans knew they were putting the Democrats on the spot by asking them to vote for something more than a simple emergency extension of jobless pay. This GOP decision grew in part out of the fact that the Democrats had put the Republicans on the spot last November by calling a special session to pass a simple emergency extension. The GOP refused to give the opposition enough votes to make it an emergency and the bill failed.

Nevertheless, there was every reason for the Republican leadership to believe that the critical unemployment situation would override Democratic objections to other aspects of the bill, so that if enough Democrats crossed over the GOP would be able to take credit not only for an extension but also for "corrective" changes in the present law.

This is not to say the Republicans were of a single mind. In a caucus the day before the floor vote, several GOP members expressed doubt about whether they could go for the bill.

Viewpoints Differ
Some of them on the conservative side thought it was too liberal. Some of them of liberal bent thought it was too strict.

In short, there were a lot of individual opinions among both Democrats and Republicans.

One of the contributing factors to the final outcome was a fight in the Rules Committee on Monday night.

Cloud wanted the committee to schedule the bill for a floor vote Wednesday. Lantz argued that since the bill had not been available in printed form until Monday, many of his members did not know what was in it. He pleaded for a delay on the floor vote.

Cloud overruled the minority leader. Lantz was furious. This fight in the Rules Committee became a crucial part of the fight over the bill. Lantz was able to convince his Democrats that he had been treated unfairly. Many a Democrat who had wavered over the bill, and some who had decided to support it, rallied to Lantz's defense.

Pressure Applied

Meantime Cloud and his floor whip were putting the pressure on their reluctant GOP members.

So when the session opened on Wednesday, the question of the leaders' ability to command the respect of the people they lead had been injected into the already complicated battle over the merits of the bill itself.

Lantz had a last-ditch effort to put the bill into a form acceptable to the Democrats by offering an amendment to make it a simple extension of benefits. Rep. Robert A. Taft Jr., GOP floor leader, countered by arguing that the permanent changes were needed as much as the extension and that the bill was not extreme for either labor or management, but a sincere effort at compromise.

The Republicans supported Taft, the Democrats supported Lantz. The majority ruled and the amendment was defeated.

Then came the separate votes on the emergency clause and the bill itself. Leaders Command Support
On the legislative scene, they showed that each party's leader can command and get, when the chips are down, the full support of his followers.

That knowledge will influence all the rest of the work on the session, because in a free government there has to be a way to channel the diverse viewpoints of 139 individuals representing 88 different counties toward some focal point where a decision can be made.

What the two votes revealed about the members' concern for the plight of the long-time jobless is debatable.

The Democrats, feeling confident Congress will pass its own emergency extension soon, say they were not willing to pass a permanent bill which they claim could hurt workers as much as it could help them.

If the Republicans were really interested in the jobless, the Democrats add, they could have supported the emergency extension last November.

Parties Debate

The Republicans fire back with the reply that emergency action on their bill would have come to the aid of the Ohio jobless faster than the federal legislation will. Thus, they charge, it is clear that the Democrats are not sincere in their

All Homeowners Should Know Facts About Electrical Fuses

Next time an electric house fuse blows, don't curse. Be thankful it did. This little safety valve has just prevented your house wiring from being damaged. It possibly has headed off a serious fire.

If you've just plugged in something extra on a particular circuit—a new lamp or appliance—and the fuse has blown, it indicates that that circuit was carrying all the load it could. Eliminate the extra item and see if the lights stay on.

The ordinary circuit in any home will carry 15 amps—about 1600 to 1800 watts of electricity. You will find in your fuse box a number of fuses, four or six or more, one for each circuit.

Make a List
Knowing which fuse protects which outlets will save some hunting when a fuse blows. Some quiet afternoon remove fuses one at a time while a companion tells you which lights in the house are affected. Then make a list and fasten it to the inside of the fuse box.

Changing a fuse is simple, but be certain to take special precautions. Pull the switch handle so that it is in the off position. If there is no handle you may find one or two cartridge fuse holders. Remove these to turn off current.

Replace the old fuse with one of the same rating, never with a heavier fuse. Don't stand on damp concrete. Place a dry wooden board on the floor before you start.

Juice Eater
Often a motor on a washing machine or air conditioner will cause a fuse to blow when it starts up. Although it may pull only a small amount of current when it is running, the surge of power needed to start up may be several times the amount the fuse can carry. Don't use a heavier fuse. Get a time-delay fuse, one that is slow to blow out. They are available under a variety of trade names.

If the overload lasts too long, the fuse will blow out like a any other. If a washing machine is overloaded the motor may not be able to overcome the inertia and will continue to draw the heavy current load.

Watch Out
If your circuits are protected by cartridge type fuses—fiber body, metal ends—a knowledge of which fuses protect which circuits is even more important.

Be very careful when removing this type of fuse. Even though it is blown out, the metal end on the power line side can still give you a jolt. If there doesn't seem enough fiber body between ends to get a grip, pry the fuse out with a wooden stick.

Some of the newer cartridge fuses are renewable. The ends can be unscrewed and the metal wire replaced. Replacement wires cost a few pennies.

25-Watt Test
If a fuse continues to blow, check for trouble. A 25-watt bulb put in place of the fuse will glow dimly if there's an overload. If it is short it will burn brightly. Try disconnecting items one at a time until the light goes out. If you can't locate the trouble, get professional help—the trouble may be inside the walls of your home.

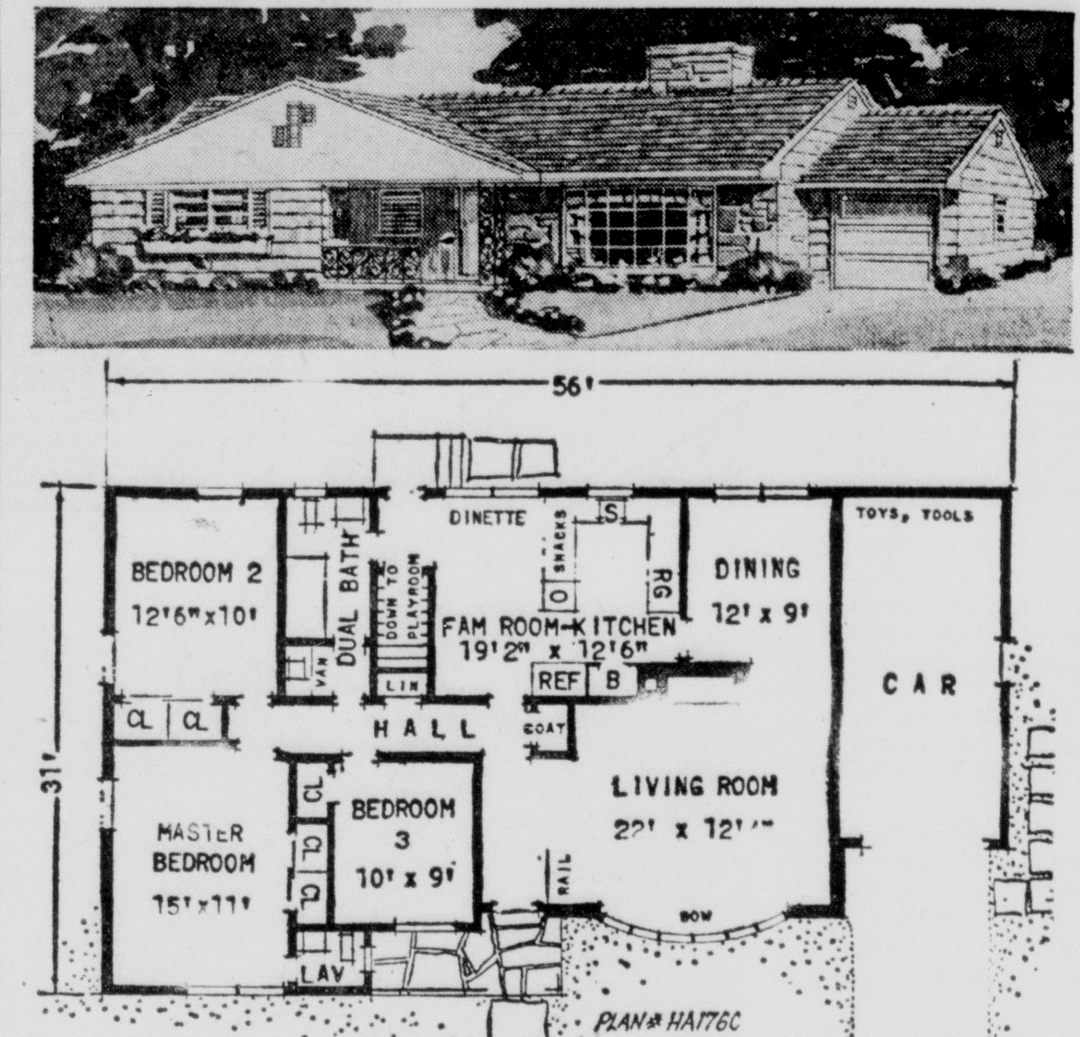

Bathroom Is Good Place To Start Modernization
A good place to start "Operation Home Improvement" is in the bathroom because the bathroom is more than any other room, indicates the age of the house.

With the possible exception of the kitchen, there is no other place in the home where such significant improvements in appearance and utility can be made at such moderate cost as in the bathroom. The Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau points out that in bathrooms in middle aged houses can be effected.

Because fixtures are the key to any bathroom modernization project, it is well to start by discussing plans with a planning and heating contractor. Being an expert on modernization, the contractor will be able to offer advice on the selection of fixtures and piping materials. He will also be in a position to make valuable suggestions on the arrangement of the fixtures for utmost utility and convenience.

Plumbing contractors are glad to supply estimates on the modernization of bathrooms, powder rooms, and kitchens, and to arrange easy payment terms to suit the convenience of the homeowner.

With the cost of a bathroom modernization project spread over 36 or more months on a monthly payment plan, the cost is moderate considering the enjoyment which all members of the family will derive.

HANDSOME RANCH—A combination kitchen-family room is at the heart of this ranch-type home. There is also a real dining room, three bedrooms, a dual bath and a private master lavatory. Focal points in the living room are a big bow window and a corner-hearth fireplace. The architect is Lester Cohen, Room 75, 117 West 48th St., New York 36, N. Y. and the plan is HA176C.

Next Winter's Driveway Woes Can Be Headed Off In Spring

Once the snow is gone don't be surprised to find one or more tire tracks in your lawn right alongside the driveway. These ruts are the result of a lack of markers to guide you when a covering of snow makes drive and lawn look alike.

What you should have done before winter started and while the ground was soft was to drive markers into the ground along the edge of the drive. A few long stakes painted red or orange can guide you along the right path. Tomato or bean poles from the summer garden will serve nicely. If you think you can break through the solid ground you might still want to put in markers.

Better than markers and offering protection all year round is some permanent marker or curb for your drive. Plantings such as low growing hedges may involve more work and money than you care to invest. And they must be far enough from the drive to permit opening car doors.

A curb can be made of wood, masonry, old stones, almost anything durable. You can make yourself a genuine curb such as the type that lines our streets. Take a look at the curb out front and then dig a ditch along the edge of the drive that's as wide as the curb plus the thickness of the forms you will need.

Use 1x3's set on edge and held in place with stakes. Oil the inner surfaces before pouring concrete. Use waste motor oil for this. Pieces of quarter-inch plywood or hardboard should be inserted evenly six or eight feet at right angles to the forms.

Oil these and remove after the concrete has set. The forms can be removed after 24 hours. Fill the gap with tar or roofing cement.

Field Stones
Simplest of all is a pair of field stones set at the upper and lower ends of the lawn alongside the drive. A whole row of them will be even more decorative and protective. Paint them white so that you can see them at night and they'll keep you off the lawn during the warm weather. When they're snow covered you'll have to depend on their bulk and weight to keep your tires from running over them.

Some folks use a row of bricks set at a saw-tooth like angle. Set them loosely in a trench and anchor the end bricks with concrete. This sort of arrangement can be hazardous if there are small children running around.

Picket Line
Inexpensive lengths of foot-high picket fencing can be purchased at most department and hardware stores and garden shops. Or you can make your own, if you have power tools or even a hand saw and plenty of time. From a lathe material from your lumber yard.

These will have to be kept pointed. The ends that are driven into the ground should be treated with a wood preservative.

Rustic Look
If your house and landscaping have a rustic look, use logs of redwood or cedar. Place them in a shallow ditch along the edge of the ditch. They'll have to be uniform in size, about six or eight inches thick. Drive stakes into the ground behind them to keep them from shifting. Get the type that are used for fence posts, stripped clean of bark. Varnish them for added durability.

And if you don't do any of this by next fall, don't forget the brightly painted bean poles.

Shallow She's Solved Problem of Space Shortage

Storage of canned and packaged foods always has been a problem, even in kitchens with plenty of cabinet space. Little cans get lost behind big ones in the cavernous cabinets, and small packages hide behind larger boxes.

An ideal solution has been devised by Jonathan Alely, editor of House Beautiful's Building Manual, for the kitchen of his home in Rowayton, Conn.

Alely built rows of shallow shelves carefully sized to hold the varying array of foodstuffs, paper napkins, towels, and the like. The shelves are hidden with a narrow folding doors of ponderosa pine.

The panels give the appearance of rich wood paneling when the doors are closed, and harmonize with the Colonial decor of the Alely home.

Alely built the folding doors himself, using two stock panel doors of ponderosa pine picked up from his local building material dealer. The two doors are cut lengthwise down the center of the middle stile. Special folding door hardware lets them open and close easily without jutting out into the room.

Building material dealers also stock ready-made folding panel doors, complete with hardware, and ready to install. These come in a number of sizes, and are ideal for food pantries and closets in any part of the house.

Particularly delighted with her new storage space is Alely's wife, Janet. "Now everything is in easy reach," she says, "and I can tell at a glance what I need when I'm making out my shopping list."

Greatest Clamor Since Coolidge

"The idiest question of the moment," mused the New York Herald Tribune a few days ago, "is whether Richard M. Nixon will extend his retirement from a vice presidency to retirement from politics altogether. We cannot think of a more remote possibility."

But, having thought of it, the Herald Tribune went on to think, with a suggestion of wishfulness, that the former vice president will be returning to national politics one of these days.

In the Republican party, it pointed out, the kind of leadership he stood for in the 1960 presidential campaign stands somewhere between the kind that would be offered by Barry Goldwater on the extreme right and Nelson Rockefeller on the extreme left.

"All portents, including the Nixon temperament and record of diligent 'Republicanism,' concluded the Herald Tribune, 'point to an eventual reactivation of his temporarily stalled leadership. Young and healthy ex-vice presidents are not given to fading away to the never-never land of elder statesmanship.'"

But in the same vein of idle questioning, one can wonder what the shock would be if the "most available" candidate for 1960 were to decide after falling just short of the mark at the climax of his career not to make another try.

What would ensue, if that decision were made and published, would set off the greatest clamor for reconsideration since Calvin Coolidge decided "not to run." Mr. Nixon would be confronted on every side with strident demands for loyalty to his party, his country and his world. Some of the same people who were miffed because he was the "most available" candidate in 1960 would be miffed because he was threatening to be unavailable.

It would be a remarkable decision for a lifelong political careerist to make. The presidential bug, once it bites, is hard to resist. Nevertheless, Coolidge did resist it in his day, though he, of course, had been bitten more deeply than Mr. Nixon, who didn't make the White House.

The idiest question of the moment... Oh well, it's February and a blessing to live in a country where politics can be speculated about idly once elections are safely over and the next round still safely distant.

U.N. Tries the Impossible

Outside the Congo, there can be easy agreement that peace is the thing most desired. All nations feel this way. The United Nations can agree without any trouble that nothing would be worse than a civil war that would find both sides seeking support.

That would put the United States against the Soviet Union. It would be a repetition of Korea, although Adlai E. Stevenson, U. S. delegate to the United Nations, pointed out carefully last week that the United States would not act again without cooperation if military violence broke out in the Congo.

But there is no assurance there would be cooperation. Why would European nations go to war against Negroes in Africa? Why would anyone go to war against Negroes in the Congo? Why would the United Nations want to fight Negroes?

But how else could the United Nations and its members force peace on the Congo against the will of leaders eager to fight a civil war without becoming embroiled in war?

One must wonder in this sixth decade of the 20th century how things would have been 100 years ago in the United States if there had been a United Nations. How would things have been 200 years ago, when the then great powers of the world—Britain and France—were taking sides over the surging nationalism of the American colonies.

Would a United Nations have been able to stop civil war in the United States when that was the only way to establish the supremacy of one of two contending factions?

Would a United Nations have been able to stop military violence in the American colonies when they broke away from British rule, helped by the interference of France in upsetting what Britons believed to be a divine right of rulership?

Would the Irish revolution, the French revolution, revolutions in Latin America and all the civil wars that have raged been susceptible to settlement by the United Nations and the major powers that are its military force?

It is the conventional wisdom of this era that military violence is unthinkable everybody agrees that this is so. But everybody feels this way only about the other fellow's violence.

Such civil war is a relative crime against society instead of an absolute crime. If it happens in Cuba, it's good, though Cubans die, and suffer as much as anyone else.

In the Congo, civil war would be bad. But whether the United Nations or the United States could prevent it is an open question. If enough Congolese strong men feel like fighting to the last drop of Congolese blood, there's nothing that can stop them.

Go, Quakers, Go!

This is the week that the Salem High School Quakers hit the basketball tournament trail and, as in previous years, the thousands of loyal fans will be with them.

A situation peculiar to Salem and the envy of many other communities is the strong hometown following. It was this enthusiastic response that helped the 1958-59 team reach the Columbus finals and the Quakers this year have shown that they can match the best teams in the state again.

Go, Quakers, Go! You can do it!

Minimum Health

The Columbiana County Health Department deserves a public compliment for its efficient operation in 1960.

As reported by Dr. C. S. Palmer, county health commissioner, gains in health services were accomplished last year although the department's fulltime staff consists of the doctor, one nurse, a sanitarian and one plumbing inspector. At least another sanitarian and a second nurse are needed to provide a normal complement, but this has been impossible because voters in the county health district twice have rejected a levy for operating expenses.

It would appear that district residents are satisfied with minimum health protection, a situation that doesn't reflect too well on a county that is supposed to be progressive. In the face of obstacles, our county staff has done a good job.

Once Over

Lloyds of London suggested that Marilyn Monroe replace Liz Taylor in "Cleopatra" in order to continue full insurance on film, long delayed in completion.

Blonde Cleo might not be as bad as first thought. Nothing in Egypt is what it used to be, so why an old-fashioned one-type Queen of Nile?

Entire Egyptian scene is so different that Mark Antony in a green wig and Julius Caesar with a Salvador Dali mustache would be no surprise. It switch to Marilyn is ever made we have following message all ready:

Oh, Anthony and Julius, too,

While most national labor chiefs were broiling in the Florida sun, Walter Reuther was toiling in snow-avalanched northern cities on a problem close to his militant heart. "Organizing the unorganized" — unionizing the non-unionized by the millions.

For over eight months, in fact, the 53-year-old "youth" of labor's high command has been head of a little known three-man committee developing strategy for a national organizing campaign — sweeping in from California citrus and fruit ranches to tool plants in New York and Philadelphia.

No doubt the potential is enormous. On this take the word from Harry Van Arsdale, leader of New York City's Central Labor Council, who said the other day that there were more non-unionized workers in New York State than in "all 10 Southern states together."

White House Deluge

By J. F. TER HORST

President Kennedy either is going to have to break a White House mail jam or stop asking people for help in running the country.

The White House is receiving about three times as many letters, telegrams and postcards as it has been able to answer each week, a spokesman said.

Some people are beginning to complain.

Kennedy and his new son, it seems, are most to blame for the mail deluge but Mrs. Kennedy and 3-year-old Caroline must share in it.

The President touched things off in his inaugural address when he told folks: "Ask not what your country can do for you—ask what you can do for your country."

Well, the offers are coming in by the thousands, from young persons enticed by the peace corps idea, retired men who would like to do something patriotic, from Americans scattered around the globe.

Last week, the White House received 43,000 pieces of mail, according to Andrew Hatcher, assistant press secretary. By dint of hard work and long hours, the staff was able to answer about 14,000.

The 29,000 that went unanswered are now buried beneath this week's avalanche.

Mail is still coming in congratulating the Kennedys on the birth of baby John Jr., last Nov. 25. The stir he caused prompted John Sr. to publicly thank the nation and the world at his first news conference for all the messages and presents.

William Tellski

Inside Labor By Victor Riesel

Victor Riesel

ALL THIS Reuther knows he has been telling his own associates in the old CIO unions that he has been disturbed by the failure of the AFL-CIO national headquarters to whip up a coast-to-coast organizing drive.

There has been no "dynamism" in the movement, he is quoted as saying.

To those of us who listened to his unreported tensely militant 16-minute speech at the Liberal party's testimonial dinner to Art Goldberg on Feb. 18, his restlessness was obvious.

Some 24 hours later the "red head" flew to Bal Harbour (uptown Miami Beach) and made his pent-up militancy just as obvious to the AFL-CIO Executive Council.

What disturbed Reuther considerably was the slowly vanishing American production and maintenance job. Between 1953 and 1960 some 1 1/2 million such tasks have disappeared from the American factory.

Another 400,000 such jobs have been wiped off the nation's railroad system. This adds up to almost 2 million members cut from the movement during the eight-years since the AFL-CIO merger.

But — while the blue collar millions have been wiped out of production and maintenance in the factories and on the rails, there has been a dramatic increase of 600,000 white collar people in this very same field.

These white collar people — replacing the men in denim and overalls — are the scientists, engineers, technicians, draftsmen and the office clerical "supporting" staff.

THEY ARE non-union. Reuther wants to change all that. And being Reuther, his horizons always are more distant.

Researchers have told him that the greatest increase in any field since 1953 has occurred in the state, county and municipal area.

An additional 1.9 million more workers have entered this non-federal public employment in the past eight years. Most of them are non union. Fully half the newcomers are teachers, school personnel and others associated with education.

Another leap forward since '53 has been the service area — where the lines are fuzzy. About 1.1 million new workers have entered hotels, restaurants, laundries, gas stations, etc., since '53.

Still another potential organizing field has been the retail, wholesale and warehouse business — with a jump of 1.1 million since the founding of the AFL-CIO.

ADD TO THIS about 450,000 new clerical jobs, in banks and insurance companies. From the turbulent vantage point of the AFL-CIO Agricultural Workers Organizing Committee there are a possible 2 million "factory in the field" members.

There also is a new "Food and Beverage Dept.," just set up by 10 unions such as the meat cutters, hotel and restaurant employees and the bakers. They talk of unionizing "2 to 3 million" possible new members.

These are the fields Reuther has surveyed. These are the fields Reuther wants to invade. That's certain. What's not so certain is his ability to stir his colleagues into action. If he doesn't, then the "Red Head" and some of the former CIO unions may organize on their own.

Beginning Of The End

By DAVID LAWRENCE

States Losing Traditional, Constitutional Role

Some day the historians may say that the Kennedy administration marked a new epoch in the American system of government — the beginning of the end of the 50 states in their traditional and constitutional role.

For, without change of a word in the federal Constitution but by use of the power of appropriation of public funds, the states are headed for a role hardly more important in the future than that of cities and counties.

Big government — centralized government — has been given a new impetus.

Last week the President of the United States proposed to Congress that $5.6 billion be spent for education — school construction and teachers' salaries — and he asked also that Social Security taxes be raised to finance various social programs.

What does it all mean? Will the states hereafter be merely vehicles for political-party organizations to help win a presidential election and will the states of smaller population be continually subsidized by the taxpayers of other states?

Perhaps the clearest explanation, if not prophecy, of what is coming was given the other day by the new under secretary of health, education, and welfare, Ivan A. Nestingen.

He was formerly mayor of Madison, Wis. He was talking to a session here of the National Industrial Conference Board and there were in the audience the heads of many of the large businesses of the country.

HE MADE this significant observation, which was not fully reported in the press:

"This question is, as has fairly frequently been raised to me: Why is it that on questions of education, on matters relating to social security or aid to people in the field of welfare, or in the field of health, why is it that we have to centralize everything in a national administration and whether or not we cannot take care of it at a state or local level.

"I want to say this in answer to that, as a former municipal official. If we do not find a positive program coming forth from the federal government on these matters that are of concern, you won't have the action that is going to be needed to meet these problems in the years ahead for several reasons, and they are these: "First of all, states and local units of government, on planes of varying degrees, don't have the financial wherewithal to provide for these needs. They do not have the taxing authority that is found in the federal government and they are not able to meet these needs at a local or state level in good part.

"We all are aware of the financial problems that are faced by some of the states, and the limited financial means and still the great resources, the great human resources they have within their population but the inability to provide for them on some of these programs.

"ANOTHER REASON why you will not be able to find a good and adequate answer and the answer that needs to be furnished at the pace that needs to be furnished from a local and state level, is that you do not have the political jurisdiction in which to act.

"Too many of these problems in the field of education, in the field of water pollution, in the field of air pollution, in the field of general welfare, do not have at the local level the political jurisdiction and control to act on these matters on a broad base.

"The federal government is going to have to take these steps. It is going to have to be in the best interests of all of us that these steps are taken by the federal government."

The above really shocked some of the members of the audience who talked about it among themselves afterward.

One businessman said it negated the assurances President Kennedy had given at the same meeting when he spoke of "strengthened programs for health, education, and science and research" and declared that "many of these programs are within the province of state and local governments."

He had added that full recovery "will increase the tax revenues that they so sorely need."

HE HAD SPOKEN only of the federal government paying "its fair share of development of these human resources" and not taking over the full responsibility in place of the states and cities.

Even more reassuring were the words of Vice President Lyndon Johnson, who said that "This administration does not and will not seek great new powers by proclaiming great new terrors" and that the purpose of the new leadership is "not to aggrandize government in order to make the state supreme."

When the years have passed and there is a retrospective glance at what began to happen in America in 1961 under the Kennedy programs, the historian may have to concede that under Secretary Nestingen was more nearly right than any other speaker about the gradual erosion of the constitutional powers of the states by the use of the U. S. Treasury's taxing authority and by the exercise by Congress of its assumed right to pass laws spending the taxpayers' money as it pleases.

This And That

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

American girls are marrying younger than ever. The chances are 96 in 100 that a girl married between 16 and 20 will have a baby. If she waits to 30 or 35, the chances are only 85 out of 100.

The price of civilization is headaches. The average American now gulps 114 aspirins a year. It has been estimated that for every $50 earned in this country someone gets a headache.

We must be the world's most traveling people. Every day some 3 1/2 million Americans are on an overnight trip taking them at least 100 miles away from home.

What sound most sets your nerves on edge? The most annoying sound to men, a survey found, was that made by scraping a saucepan with a knife.

Our own choices: the morning alarm clock—or a wife doing her fingernails.

Criticizes Carney Proposal

I noticed in the Salem News where Senator C. J. Carney of Mahoning County introduced a bill to punish any man whom the unions please to call a strike breaker. Therefore, I wrote the senator that, as a lawmaker for the state of Ohio, he should read the Constitution which says in plain English that all men shall have the right to make an honest living, without any interference from any one.

Any man has the right to go on a strike, but he should never expect to live on public money, because he does not have the nerve to disagree with his labor leader unless he is willing and has the money to keep him and the wife and kids.

I told Senator Carney that this proposed bill, in my opinion, is an insult to any decent American.

The public should condemn Carney's proposal which, if passed by the Ohio legislature, would prohibit a non-union worker from accepting a job left by a union worker.

monument overlooking the Congo River.

They allegedly were ordered to take off their shoes and run for a mile over rocky ground while the Congolese beat them with rifle butts.

The leftist troops heading unopposed toward Leopoldville posed a threat to both the central Congo government and the future of the U.N. Congo operation.

The intentions of the rebel force from Stanleyville which backs the late Patrice Lumumba's regime in the northeastern Congo are unclear. Half the country now is believed under Lumumbist control.

The military column of about 500 men has met no resistance so far from either U.N. or central government soldiers. Most of Maj. Gen. Joseph Mobutu's government troops are hundreds of miles north in Equator Province, asked by the U.N. command to hold up their own planned invasion of rebel-dominated territory.

Slated to arrive amid this new uncertainty is G. Mennen Williams, U.S. assistant secretary if state, who comes here on a five-day visit planned weeks ago.

To Have Private Briefing

His party of 19 was to go directly from Leopoldville Airport to a private briefing by U.S. Ambassador Clare H. Timberlake. Williams is to talk Tuesday with President Joseph Kasavubu and Premier Joseph Ileo, then meet Rajeshwar Dayal of India, head of the U.N. Congo mission.

The way Dayal has handled his job has created expressions of anger and mistrust among Congolese loyal to the Kasavubu government.

The Kasavubu regime has accused the United Nations of two-faced dealing with the rival Leopoldville and Stanleyville regimes.

The complaint is that the U.N. command has persuaded Mobutu not to send his army against Stanleyville, yet does nothing to stop Stanleyville troops on the march.

Minerva, Alliance Win; Meet In Finals Tuesday

Top-seeded Minerva clashes with second-seeded Alliance in the finals of the Alliance Sectional Tournament Tuesday at 8 p.m.

The winner will advance to District competition at Canton.

For Alliance it means the opportunity to win its fifth Sectional in six staged in that city. Minerva broke the Aviator's spell last year for the only time.

MINERVA DEFEATED SANDY Valley, 49-39, and Alliance trimmed Canton Glenwood, 41-35, Saturday to earn their way into Tuesday's finals. A crowd of 1,547 saw the two games played in the Stanton Junior High School gym. Glenwood which upset West Branch, 52-43, in the first round, got off to a miserable start against Alliance. The Aviators led 9-2 at the quarter and 21-11 at halftime before Glenwood closed the gap to 28-22 at the three-quarter mark.

DON MILLER racked up 20 points for Minerva in the Lions' 49-39 win over Sandy Valley. The contest proved to be very rough with three Sandy Valley players leaving the game on personal fouls and one Minerva player leaving via the same route.

The Lions won the game on the foul line, sinking 19 of 33 free throws while Sandy made only 9 of 16.

Minerva proved to be more accurate of 42 shots while Sandy made 15 of 69 chances.

Minerva improved its record to 15-4. Alliance will take a 12-7 record into Tuesday's finals.

North Lima Coach, Team, Both Hit Jackpot Saturday

North Lima captured consolation honors in the Mahoning County Class "A" Tournament Saturday night at Jackson-Milton by turning back Springfield Local, 78-53.

This was the fourth time that North Lima and Springfield had met this season. They split a pair of regular season games and then broke even in two Mahoning County tournament frays.

Ward Manchester ran his season's point total to 344 by flipping in 23 against the Tigers Saturday. Louis Day notched 20 for the Zips. High point man for Springfield Local was Jim Allen with 16.

Springfield Local closed with a 7-14 record.

North Lima also won the Mahoning County Junior High cage championship Saturday by defeating Western Reserve in the finals.

To complete the triple victory for North Lima Saturday, varsity coach John Morey was presented a new bouncing baby boy by his wife. The Moreys now have a record of two boys and no girls.

The 1962 Woman's International Bowling Congress tournament will be held at Phoenix, Ariz.

OSU Needs Single Win To Cop 2nd Big Ten Title In Row

Buckeyes Humble Wisconsin 97-74

Western Michigan Upsets B-G; KSU Dumps Third-Rated Miami

By FRITZ HOWELL
Associated Press Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Almost half of Ohio's 40 collegiate basketball teams have wrapped up the regular season — but plenty of pyrotechnics are on tap before the final curtain falls.

Tournament tests will take over before long, and the best of the Buckeye boys will be on hand — with Ohio State's terrific Bucks favored to add new laurels in the big one, the NCAA.

The Bucks need a victory over Michigan State Saturday, or over Illinois March 11, for their second straight Big Ten title. The first time around they trimmed the Illini 91-65 and the Spartans 83-68, and no upsets appear in the making.

Most Champs Repeated

Like OSU, the other Ohio champions of 1960 played this year as if they were looking in a mirror. Ohio University repeated as champion in the Mid-American. Defiance in the Mid-Ohio, and Wittenberg in the Ohio Conference. Cincinnati, last year's Missouri Valley key, has at least a share of the 1961 title tucked away.

The Presidents' Conference, however, will have a new ruler — and it looks like Case Tech's Scientists. A year ago John Carroll ruled the scholarly circuit, but Case has an 8-2 record for a half-game edge over W. & J., with two to play.

Following this week's 22-game schedule, only five regular-season contests remain for next week's epilog. But by that time everything will be decided.

Of the 18 teams which completed their regular campaigns last week, three have further

Mantle Faces New Challenge

Houk Designates Him 'Take-Charge Guy'

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

New York Yankee slugger Mickey Mantle, 29, trotted out today for a spring training workout today faced with the new challenge of becoming the American League champions' "take-charge guy" after a 10-year baseball career in which he has shunned the spotlight.

The reticent center fielder, who hit 275 while smashing 40 home runs and collecting 94 runs batted in last season, was thrust squarely into the position Sunday when new manager Ralph Houk brought up the subject.

"Mantle could be the leader of the ball club," Houk said. "He has reached the point in his career where that's possible. I'm going to try to bring that out in him. I talked with him when he signed last month and I'll talk to him some more."

Houk said that didn't mean the switch-hitting outfielder would officially be designated captain, a post the Yankees have kept vacant since the late Lou Gehrig retired.

Manager Danny Murtaugh of the world champion Pittsburgh Pirates faced the day with all hands on deck and the annual contract squabbling ended by the signing of first baseman Dick Stuart.

Also agreeing to terms as the list of unsigned major leaguers continued to dwindle was little Nellie Fox, Chicago White Sox second baseman.

At Vero Beach, Fla., the Dodgers' new addition became one of the first to get the heave-ho when minor league umpire Jim Duncan of the Midwest League thumped him out for heckling from the coaches' box.

Celts' 5th Straight Title Almost In Bag

By The Associated Press
The Boston Celtics' fifth straight Eastern Division crown in the National Basketball Association was all but assured today after the Celts lowered their magic number to two over the weekend.

But the remaining playoff berth in the Western Division is still up for grabs between Detroit and Cincinnati.

Boston won both of its weekend games, beating St. Louis 122-109 Saturday and leveling Detroit 113-99 Sunday. The two victories, combined with Philadelphia's 121-116 loss to Los Angeles Sunday means the Celtics can gain the Eastern title with two victories, a pair of losses by Philadelphia or a combination of the two.

Even with the Boston loss, Detroit stayed two games in front of Cincinnati as the Royals also bowed, 143-122 to division champion St. Louis. Cincinnati has only 4 games left while Detroit has 6.

In the other game Sunday, Syracuse beat New York 136-110 while Philadelphia won from Cincinnati 129-120 in Saturday's only other game.

Bonnies Are Upset By Niagara Eagles

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Ohio State still is the No. 1 team in the nation, and no doubt about it. But the Buckeyes have to give up some of the spotlight to Niagara, the No. 1 team of the moment in college basketball.

It was the Purple Eagles, coached by nice guy Taps Gallagher, who snubbed a jinx and surely drew a nod from the National Invitation Tournament by bound St. Bonaventure 87-77 Saturday.

The Bonnies had won 12 in a row and had lost only to unbeaten Ohio State, the weekly unanimous Associated Press poll, by a mere two points, 84-82, in the Holiday Festival in New York.

Not only did Niagara whomp the Bonnies by 10 points, but they did it in St. Bonaventure's cozy home court at Olean, N.Y., where the Bonnies had put away 99 consecutive victories. St. Bonaventure hadn't lost in 13 years and 13 days at home, and it was the same Gallagher and Niagara that last came out a winner there.

Temple (1-5) agreed to its fourth trip to the NIT Sunday, after beating Villanova 79-69 in a Philadelphia doubleheader that also sent St. Joseph's into the NCAA AS Middle Atlantic Conference representative after the Hawks had downed Muhlenberg 81-72.

The Missouri Valley and the Southeastern races offer the brightest scraps for tournament berths. Third-ranked Cincinnati,

OLD COUNTRY STORE

Columbiana-Lisbon Road

This is the time of year when our business is at its lowest point, but much to our delight, and thanks to you good people, things are going full blast. Almost every hour a new customer finds his way to our store. What we like about it, is that they tell us they'll be back.

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Readers: Remember "Bitter 15," the lad who was paying his own school tuition and buying his own clothes?

I thought his parents had done a superb job of teaching him self-reliance and I said so. I also went to bat for him and suggested that his folks buy him a hi-fi set. Many readers agreed with me. Many did not. Nobody was neutral.

Here is an assortment of opinions:

CHICAGO: Have you lost your mind? I'm considering canceling my subscription unless you back-track on your advice to "Bitter 15." His parents must be idiots. And so are you.—MARY S.

CLEVELAND: Here's a 21-gun salute from a clergyman who has done a great deal of counseling with teen-age boys. Few columnists would have had the courage to take the unpopular position and applaud the parents.

I have worked with delinquent boys for many years and not one was raised in a home where he had to go to school, hold down a job and account for his money. Your stand was sound and I commend you heartily for it.—REV. R.B.

GRAND FORKS, N.D.: If the parents of "Bitter 15" bought him that hi-fi set he wants so badly when would he play it? In his sleep?—MRS. L. J.

TOLEDO: You said the teen-agers were going to hate you for sticking up for the boy's parents. Well, you're right. They do. Why should teen-agers have to buy their own clothes? What are parents for anyway?—T.J.

LOUISVILLE, Ky.: You came through like a Kentucky thoroughbred with your reply to "Bitter 15." Our 16-year-old slob gets $5 a week spending money Monday. By Saturday he's broke. He thinks he's abused when he's asked to carry out the trash once in awhile. His favorite line is "Why do have to do this? I'm not hired help."

The parents of "Bitter 15" are raising a self-reliant, responsible young man. By comparison, our noodnik is a vegetable.—G.T.

SALT LAKE CITY: You're nuts. Did you say the parents were raising a wonderful boy? It should be me as if the boy is raising himself. What are they doing besides letting him live in the house and take his meals with them?—MAD.

SAN JOSE, Calif.: You're probably plenty busy ducking bricks because of your answer to "Bitter 15." Well, honey, here's a rose from San Jose.

Any boy who can sit down and account for $566.80 of the $623.60 he earned for the year is sure to be one whale of a success. The boy may feel his folks are hard on him now, but he'll thank them later.—CHEERING.

MARSHALLTOWN, Iowa: Your reply to "Bitter 15" was shocking. I think the parents should be reported to the juvenile authorities in their city.—FURIOUS.

NEW YORK: I would like to buy that remarkable 15-year-old boy the hi-fi set he wants so badly. Any youngster as good as he is deserves one. May I have his name and address?—MR. J.L.M.

Dear Mr. J.L.M.: Sorry, I never put one reader in touch with another. But thanks for your generous offer — and for making my point more eloquently than I ever could.

You have enormous respect and admiration for this young man and I do, too. How did the boy become self-reliant, responsible, self-disciplined? Was he born that way? No, he was not. He is the product of his parents' upbringing.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Salem News, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The Doctor Says

By Dr. H. T. HYMAN

Life's Too Earnest To The Young

"My son has threatened to commit suicide," writes an anguished mother "if he fails to be accepted for a certain college that he's been planning to go to ever since he was a little boy."

"He just took his entrance examinations. He says he was so rattled he knows he didn't do well. And he told one of his friends, whose mother repeated what he said to me, that he would end his life if he was turned down."

"I suppose Dr. H. T. Hyman you may think I'm foolish to put any stock in a boy's idle talk but, just a year ago, a neighbor's son made the same threat and carried it out."

INDEED I don't think you're foolish to be alarmed, dear mother. I have known of far too many of these adolescent suicides to disregard any such threat.

Ordinarily there are at least two important considerations that lie behind a threat of this kind. The first is the absolutism that dominates youthful choices. To the inexperienced, there are no in-betweens. You succeed or you fail.

THE SECOND consideration that weighs heavily with the young, to say nothing of immature adults, is the matter of "face." I imagine that every pal and girl friend has been made aware of your son's ambition. In all probability, he has rooted for the college's teams wherever they played and celebrated their victories season in and season out.

For him to be turned down by the college to which he has been so loyal and with which his friends identify him would be a grievous blow. He could neither defend the college for its "ingratitude" to him, nor could he accept total responsibility for his rejection.

Now, if I have judged this situation correctly, there are at least two approaches that may prove fruitful. And, since you're not supposed to know of the threat, you will have to attempt each through indirection.

THE FIRST WOULD involve "face-saving." And that I think you can accomplish through raising objections to your son's admission to the college of his choice.

To your son, his friends' mother who repeated the threat and others of your acquaintance, let it be known that you disapprove of the college. It's too near home to it's too far away. It's too small or too large. It places too much emphasis on athletics. Or too little.

And you continue your objections until it's made quite clear institutions or your son, but your objections. And these can be withdrawn with good grace if he's accepted.

THE SECOND POLICY is that of suggesting alternatives, much as a military tactician plans an "escape corridor" when he maps his battle campaign. Send for college catalogues far and wide. Pore over them with your son. Point out advantages and opportunities presented by each. And maybe, during spring vacation, blow him to a trip to several nearby campuses. Let him see for himself what each has to offer.

And maybe he'll discover — by himself of course — that there are really gradations of shade between black and white.
